

A wireless network telephone system using an embedded processor as the CPU to provide a portable and expandable network telephone system.

A wireless network telephone system using an embedded processor as the CPU to provide a portable and expandable network telephone system.